

REVERENCE PAID DEAD WAR PRESIDENT

FALL EXPECTED TO BE CALLED BY COMMITTEE OF SENATE WEDNESDAY

BOTH SIDES OF RE-APPRAISAL HEARD MONDAY

Sentiment For And Against Expressed at the Hearing.

Sentiment for and against a re-appraisal of property in Greene County this year was expressed at an open hearing on the subject before County Commissioners in the assembly room of the Court House Monday morning.

When the meeting recessed for luncheon to resume the discussion at one o'clock, 11 people in attendance had expressed their views, seven being lined up against re-appraisal and four favoring the plan. Following the hearing county commissioners must decide whether they will order a reappraisal at this time, as advised in a report of County Auditor R. O. Wead.

Those who spoke for re-appraisal were: W. M. Hardman, Miami Twp., representing the Greene County Farm Bureau; Morris D. Rice, Attorney, Osborn, representing the Osborn Removal Co., and the residents of Bath Twp., R. D. Williamson, Jasper Twp., former county commissioner and E. W. Burrows, land owner, Bath Twp.

People who spoke against the reappraisal were: P. H. Flynn, owner of city and country property, and chairman of a committee representing the Rotary Club; John Townsley, Cedarville Township, farmer, Harvey Lackey, Ross Twp., farmer; W. A. McDorman, Ross Twp., farmer; Mrs. J. M. Stewart, Cedarville village; R. C. Watt, Cedarville Township, farmer and Karl Bull, editor of the Cedarville Herald.

There has not been an appraisal of property in Greene County since 1910. Those arguing in favor of an appraisal say:

1—There are many inequalities existing on the tax duplicate, properties of equal merit adjoining each other being on the tax duplicate, at widely varying appraisements.

2—Property values have now struck rock bottom and an appraisal would be timely before a slight boom might cause an inflation at a time when an appraisal was ordered.

3—In the spirit of fair play, many properties are not producing enough in taxes in comparison with their worth and should be adjusted because of the need of full valuation to raise sufficient taxes.

4—If the county commissioners decide against an appraisal of property, the State Tax Commission has the power to order such an appraisal at once, summarily, or to order it in a year or so when property may be inflated to some extent.

Opponents of re-appraisal argue:

1—That, especially concerning the farmer, business conditions are at low ebb, and that a re-appraisal that would increase property values would work a hardship that would cripple agriculture in the county.

2—That property values have not yet struck rock bottom and that it would be better to wait until the limit is reached before attempting to reappraise property at present values, allegedly still slightly inflated.

3—That the cost of the reappraisal of 1910 with only about half the Official Activities In Naval Oil Leasing at Standstill.

CONGRESS ADJOURNS

Step Taken Out of Respect to Memory of Woodrow Wilson

Washington, Feb. 4.—All official activities in the naval oil reserve leasing scandal came to a complete standstill today out of respect to the memory of Woodrow Wilson.

With Congress merely meeting and adjourning almost immediately, the public lands committee could not obtain from the Senate a re-affirmation of its authority to conduct investigations into the leasing of Elk Hills and Teapot Dome by ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall. Senator Lenroot, Republican, of Wisconsin, chairman, announced, however, that the committee tomorrow would ask the Senate to pass again the oil probing resolutions on which Fall based his challenge not to testify further before the committee.

Pending approval of the resolutions by the Senate, expected by unanimous vote, and the reappearance of Fall, probably Wednesday morning, the committee has decided not to hear other witnesses. Numerous stockbrokers who are in Washington under subpoena have been told their examination will be delayed until the committee has another "showdown" with Fall. The committee desires to learn from these stockbrokers, representing leading Washington, New York and Cleveland houses, whether any governmental officials dealt in Sinclair stock previous to the leasing of Teapot Dome. The only important overnight development was a letter which Thomas Watt Gregory, appointed, but later withdrawn by President Coolidge as one of the government's special oil counsel, wrote to the president. While he declared his connection with the Doherty oil interests "makes it inappropriate for me to act as your counsel in this matter," Gregory said, he did not understand that he "was accepting an appointment" when the president telephoned him in Austin, Texas, last Tuesday, that he wanted "to employ me in the investigation of the oil leases."

Gregory said that his employment with a group of oil companies of which Doherty was one, slipped his mind until the matter was called to his attention by Doherty's testimony and he refreshed his memory.

The appointments of Silas H. Atlee Pomerene, former Democratic senator from Ohio, who was named to succeed Gregory, will be sent to the senate for confirmation within a day or two, the White House announced today.

If Fall again fails to answer questions, the committee will begin immediately to bring contempt proceedings against him, it was learned today following a week end of conferences among members of the committee.

Coolidge Calls Upon Northwest To Come To Rescue of Bank and Farm Interests

Washington, Feb. 4.—President Coolidge today called upon the people of the great agricultural Northwest to come to the rescue of their banking and farming interests, which are threatened by the financial crisis.

Addressing a conference of leading representatives of these vital national interests in the northwestern states, the president declared that "reconstruction, not charity," was the policy of the government in providing financial rehabilitation for the wheat country and outlined a program of remedial measures designed to enable the farmer to "work out his future with the help of funds advanced by the government."

Steps to be taken by the government were announced by the president as:

1—Enactment of the Norbeck-Burness bill, providing and appropriation for the purpose of promoting the diversification of agriculture in certain sections of the country which heretofore have been devoted primarily to the production of wheat, and

2—Authorizing the war finance corporation to make advances for agricultural purposes until the end of the present calendar year.

The president said that the fund created by the Norbeck-Burness bill, now pending in Congress, could be used to make loans to wheat farmers and enable them to purchase livestock and poultry, thus equipping their farms for dairying and general farming.

"It should not be loaned to men who have not the temperament, the experience or the industry necessary for successful farming," Mr. Coolidge declared. "It is designed to help those who only can give reasonable assurance that they will succeed. Moreover, government aid in this connection must be predicated upon full co-operation of existing creditors of the farmers."

The extension of the life of the war finance corporation, the president said should not cause abandonment in its policy of having "responsible financial intermediaries," and of not making loans to individual farmers.

"The government cannot properly make loans upon insecure collateral, or to banking institutions whose capital is seriously impaired," the president declared.

"There have been severe losses to banking and commercial interests on account of serious conditions prevailing in the Northwestern states. Some of these losses can be repaired, and further losses avoided, if the program of action herein outlined is adhered to. But we must take no action that will make it possible to transfer losses from private interests to the public treasury. The object should be reconstruction, not charity, whether it is charity for the weak or for the strong. It should be repeated, therefore, that the government should not be asked to take over without recourse, an insecure doubtful paper now held by banks or other creditors, or to make loans to enable farmers to liquidate existing indebtedness to going institutions."

President Coolidge suggested that the conference should consider:

1—Steps to be taken by farm and banking organizations to assist the Department of Agriculture in adapting its diversification efforts to local conditions and making certain that assistance is given only where it is deserved and where it will be effective.

2—Methods of funding the existing indebtedness of the farmers in the wheat states.

The president expressed the opinion that all of the bank failures in the Northwest were not due to unfortunate agricultural conditions.

"There is every indication," he said "that in the case of some of the institutions which have been compelled to close their doors during the past years, the difficulties have been due essentially to poor banking rather than to distressed agriculture."

PART OF HOUSE IS BLOWN INTO STREET MONDAY

Eight Are Burned In Gas Explosion In Mansfield.

Mansfield, O., Feb. 4.—Spectators say North Diamond street was brilliantly lighted up about 6:30 o'clock this morning, followed by an explosion in which the front of an old rooming house was blown into the street. Later it was learned a leaking gas pipe had filled a room full of gas and one of the roomers had touched a match to light a fire in the stove. Ten or twelve people were rooming in the house.

The fire department responded so promptly the house was not burned and a majority of the roomers were still in bed.

The squad wagon of the fire department took four of the eight most seriously burned to the hospital. They are Tony Blackstone, Charles Williams, O. W. Quick and Leonard Williams. Their condition has not been given out by the hospital.

GREAT AMERICAN PASSES -- DONAHAY

Columbus, O., Feb. 4.—"A great American has passed," said Governor Donahay, when informed of the death of former President Wilson.

History will give him a place alongside other great Americans who gave their lives that all men might be free and independent and have certain inalienable rights among which are those of enjoying and defending life and liberty; acquiring, possessing and protecting property, and seeking and obtaining happiness and safety."

"The people of Ohio truly mourn the death of Woodrow Wilson."

WORLD PAYS HONORS TO WOODROW WILSON WHO DIES ON SUNDAY

Messages of Sympathy From Far-off Corners of Earth Come To Quiet Home Of Former President In Washington.

FUNERAL SERVICES WILL NOT BE PUBLIC

Ceremony Will Be Held Wednesday—Place of Burial Is Selected—Await Word From McAdoo Who is Rushing East.

Washington, Feb. 4.—In the calm, peacefulness of death, Woodrow Wilson slept in his modest little brick house in S street today, while a reverent nation and an inspired world passed silently by and laid on his doorstep tributes to his greatness.

The former President died at 11:15 o'clock Sunday morning. The end was peaceful, life ebbing away while he slept.

Dr. Grayson, his friend and physician, who with Mrs. Wilson and Miss Margaret Wilson were at the bedside when death came, announced the end of the great war president in this bulletin:

"Mr. Wilson died at 11:15 o'clock. His heart's action became feeble and feeble, and the heart muscle was so fatigued that it refused to act any longer. The end came peacefully.

"The remote causes of death lie in his ill health, which began more than four years ago, namely: General arterio-sclerosis with haemophilia. The immediate cause of death was exhaustion following a digestive disturbance which began in the early part of last week, but did not reach an acute stage until early morning hours of Feb. 1."

A commanding figure in life, America's great war time president became in death an even loftier, more towering symbol of the ideals for which he gave his life.

From the far corners of the earth today came messengers to mourn his going. The simple slip of paper that bore the words of an European monarch lay side by side on the hall table with the single rose that was the mute offering of a plainly dressed woman whose identity was obscured by the tear stained veil that hid her face.

The world, no less than America, hastened to give to Woodrow Wilson in death that which had been denied him in the latter days of his turbulent life—the sincere acknowledgement that when the book of time is closed, his name will be seen to stand high among the great ones of all time.

Messages of sorrow and of regard came from many places today—from London, where he designed to visit a king and called him "Sir," instead of "Your Majesty;" from Paris, where he spent the most momentous days of his epochal life in retracing the map of the world; from Rome, where he was first acclaimed with a fervor that was almost idolatrous and then hated with a vehemence that amounted to obsession, from the America's whose closer kinship he sought to further; from the far off Philippines, whose independence he favored; from the Orient, in whose affairs he occasionally dipped with a strong, firm hand. Wherever the printed word is known and where ever the echoes of a great conflict penetrated, Woodrow Wilson was known and the acclaim that was sometimes denied him in life, came to him today as he slept the long last sleep in the quiet street in the backwash of present day affairs.

In the national capitol and on public buildings everywhere, the public sorrow was expressed by flags, slapping at half staff in the cold February sunshine. They will remain so for 30 days, the period of official mourning set aside by proclamation of President Coolidge.

At the capitol itself, the sounds of conflict and bitter partisan strife that have marked recent weeks, were stilled. Both houses of Congress met and then adjourned out of respect to his memory and there were expressions of tribute and of reverence from even those who in life had opposed him and blocked his policies with asperity and distrust.

Woodrow Wilson will rest as he lived during the past three years—as a private citizen.

Announcement was made to this effect at noon today by Admiral Cary T. Grayson, his personal physician and closer personal friend, after consultation with members of the family.

They decided against a state funeral, such as many proposed immediately after his death Sunday and plans that had been in the making for the body to lay in state in the rotunda of the capitol were abandoned. It is understood the plans for private services were in accordance with the wishes of the former president.

Funeral services for Woodrow Wilson will be held privately at the residence at 3:30 p. m. Wednesday. It was announced here today by Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, the former president's physician and personal friend, after consultation with members of the family.

After the services in S street, which will be attended only by members of the family and intimate friends, the body of the former president will be taken to Bethlehem Chapel, Washington Cathedral at Mount St. Albans, in northwest Washington and there placed in the crypt until its final resting place is determined upon.

Left to themselves, the family of the former president, would have his funeral service and his burial conducted as private affairs. He was and has been for three years, they said, a private citizen a distinguished one perhaps but still a private citizen, who died in his own modest home in the bosom of his family.

But there are others, public officials and personal friends, who believe that Mr. Wilson should be accorded a funeral consistent with the honors he won and the high place he won in the world during his eventful and epochal life.

William Howard Taft, who he succeeded in the White House and the venerable chief justice of the United States Supreme Court, is one of these. No sooner had he expressed his deep personal sorrow over Mr. Wilson's death than he urged members of the family to permit a state funeral.

"The world," said the chief justice, "will not understand anything else."

The chief justice had many supporters, not only among those of Mr. Wilson's political faith, but among those of the opposite party, whose differences with Mr. Wilson were many and bitter during his life, but who, under the levelling influence of death, desire that there shall be proper and fitting national tribute to his services and his greatness.

The final decision, it was said, will not be made until members of the family have an opportunity to consult Mr. and Mrs. William G. McAdoo, the latter Mr. Wilson's daughter who are

HOUSE AND BARN AT HOME OF RUFUS GLASS ARE BURNED DOWN

The residence, barn and hog house on the Rufus Glass farm, Nash Road, east of Xenia, were destroyed by fire early Saturday morning, entailing a loss estimated at $8,000, partially covered by insurance.

The fire is believed to have started in the house from either a defective flue or crossed electric wires and sparks are thought to have carried the conflagration to the barn. The hog house adjoins the barn.

Mrs. Glass, who sleeps upstairs, arose at four o'clock Saturday morning and after starting a fire in the kitchen stove, returned to bed. Her husband, who sleeps downstairs, awoke shortly afterward and noticed fire in a clothes press in his room, adjoining the kitchen. He extinguished the blaze there with buckets of water, and then went into the yard where he saw the roof of the house and the barn on fire.

Mr. Glass aroused his wife and little son. They lost practically all their clothing and household goods, saving a player piano, buffet and a few other pieces of furniture. The house was a two-story, seven-room, frame structure.

There were no animals in the barn or hog house, but a number of farm implements in the barn were destroyed. Implements destroyed included a wheat drill, corn planter, manure spreader, hay rake, cultivator, buggy, farm wagon hay tedder, moving machine and several sets of harness, besides three tons of crushed timothy and three tons of oat straw.

Members of the family are living at the home of William Brown, a neighbor, since the fire.

number of precincts was $23,000 and that with more precincts and the increased price of labor, it might cost $50,000 to have an appraisal now.

4.—That while the watchword of the landowner now is economy the state is planning the expenditure of $1,000,000 for an office building which is an example of autocratic government to which land-owners should call a halt.

5.—That there are many small property holders making a livelihood out of their property, who would find it impossible to exist if their valuations were increased so that their taxes would be higher.

Most of the speakers agreed with Morris D. Rice, of Osborn, that Bath Twp., is experiencing a peculiar situation. Mr. Rice said Bath Twp. was preparing to ask for a reappraisal of the township even if the movement were not county-wide.

The activities of the government air service and the Wilbur Wright Air Depot, the removal of the village of Osborn with its subsequent new properties and the inflation caused by the incoming of two cement factories have caused an inflation of property values that makes the valuation on the tax duplicate unequal and unjust. He cited that properties selling for as high as $1,000 are valued at $850 on the tax duplicate. Lots in Osborn he said, were valued at $20 to $77 on the tax duplicate whereas they are selling as high as $1,250, while a similar situation prevails in Fairfield.

P. H. Flynn said that prices of materials for buildings and other purposes had raised to such an extent, while prices for farm produce are so low, that farmers now cannot make money on their farms. He said the only relief for the farmer now is a revival of the market, and that a reappraisal, likely to increase taxes, and at an enormous extent, would work a depressing hardship.

John Townsley, Cedarville Twp., said it was evident that land owners would have to pay more taxes if appraisal were ordered, else there would be no request for a reappraisal. Harvey Lackey, Ross Twp., said that a farm is not worth any more than it will bring the farmer in return for his work, and that conditions are unusually depressing now, so that a reappraisal would be very untimely.

W. A. McDorman, Ross Twp., said he was opposed to reappraisal because it would increase taxes, while roads in that township are neglected in favor of other parts of the county. John North, chairman of the board of commissioners, said the commission had nothing to do with the money spent on Ross Twp. roads as all the money levied in that township went back to it for roads. He said Xenia city carried the two mill levy last time and that unless it was voted again, there would be no money spent on Ross Twp. roads next year. Because the speaker had compared Ross Twp. roads with Clark County roads, County Auditor R. O. Wead, said the difference in the tax duplicate of Clark and Greene Counties gave Clark County more money to spend on its roads.

Morris Rice, speaking again, said the sentiment of opponents of revaluation indicated they believed it would boost their personal valuations, whereas, he said it would only adjust inequalities and might reduce the valuations on some lands.

R. D. Williamson, said the Board of Review has no authority to change the tax valuations set in the reappraisal of 1910. He said there is property side by side in the county in which big differences exist in valuation and that the only way to adjust these inequalities is to reappraise. A new appraisal is coming, he said. He declared the county has put off the appraisal as long as possible and that unless the commissioners vote for it, the tax commission will order an appraisal.

Karl Bull, said many farmers agreed the resolution of the Greene County Farm Bureau asking for a reappraisal did not express their sentiments on the question. Inequalities, he said, existed immediately after the 1910 appraisal and will continue after a new appraisal, if one is ordered, as the appraisals are a matter of opinion at the best.

More than 100 people from all over Greene County, attended the meeting.

TRAVELING

"It is about time we were starting, isn't it?" asked the Wild Geese of their leader, and the leader said: "Yes, it is time we should be starting. We are the first travelers to take the journey up further north. It is still the winter time—but we start when it is not yet spring, but then, spring expects to be along before many, many weeks pass."

So the geese started off on their journey. "Even though there is ice in our marshy home we will not mind it," said the geese. And as they flew along they said: "No, we will not mind it. We want to head the traveling procession!"

"Chirp, chirp," said little Mr. Robin. "It is time for me to go North."

"I like to be an early arrival, too. Perhaps some of my family will not come until later."

"But I want to go soon now. There is one person who greets me with absolute delight and joy when I appear."

"Oh, there is the first robin," she says, "how glad I am to see him. It seems like spring at last."

"And it is a pleasure to hear her say that."

Then the purple grackles began to travel, and the bluebirds said it was high time for them to be leaving.

And the other birds began to follow, traveling for their spring and summer homes.

They went, carrying with them no trunks and no food and no suit cases!

But their little wings were strong and their small bodies full of bravery.

The ravens and eagles and owls were already starting in housekeeping and attending to their domestic duties when the hawks began their journey.

The hawks traveled by day, for they were not afraid. The red-tailed hawks flew higher than the others and the duck hawks were on the lookout for prey as they traveled. They would even attack the plovers.

The bobolinks flew by night and from all over the birds started on their journey, which would keep them away during the spring and summer months.

Always the birds had leaders who showed the way for the others to follow.

There were some young birds who had never been on a journey of any distance before, and they bravely followed along although it all seemed quite new and strange.

"Come along, come along," said the leader birds, "this is the way to come."

"Do not get away from me. Stay close. Follow right behind."

And the birds did as their leader said.

As a great flock of the robins were flying along Leader Robin sang this song:

We follow the call of spring, spring, spring,

And some of it with us we, too, will bring.

As we go up north where it has been so cold,

And even now we're being quite bold To go so early in the season.

Some birds think it's entirely out of reason.

But we want to go early and see what's up,

And upon the very first worm we robins will sup.

Oh, we call the call of spring, spring, spring,

Which with it soft rains will bring, bring, bring.

We'll be so happy, we'll be so gay, Oh the spring, the spring we'll follow away!

"Yes," Leader Robin added, "we've become quite poetical, and we're going to sing this song with many variations and beautiful touches for the little person known as Dolly who loves us and whom we love."

"We're going to see her now. Come, birds, let us hurry, hurry!"

And the birds needed no further urging, for this flock was going to the place where Dolly lived and their little robin hearts were glad.

Followed Instructions.

"Daughter, did I not see you sitting on the young man's lap when I passed the parlor door last evening?"

"Yes, and it was very embarrassing. I wish you had not told me to."

"Good heavens! I never told you to do anything of the kind!"

"You did. You told me that if he attempted to get sentimental I must sit on him."

CAN'T RESTRAIN BRITISH BETTOR SO MAY TAX HIM

London, Feb. 4.—Englishmen—in fact, Anglo-Saxons generally—are bound to bet. If they can't sneak a wager on a horse race they'll risk their coin on some even more uncertain gamble. They'll bet on something and you can't stop 'em. Therefore the thing to do is to control betting, eliminate as many of its admitted evils as possible, impose a tax that will give the state a share in the profits, and let them bet to their hearts' content.

In somewhat different language, but to the same general purport as the foregoing sentences, a committee appointed in May, 1923, to investigate and report to the British Government on betting summarizes the conclusions drawn from its prolonged investigation. The report of the committee brings forth some remarkable side-lights on betting as it prevails in England.

Betting as it is now conducted, the committee declares, is demoralizing to the people.

"The continual breaking of the law by millions of people by betting in the streets, the surreptitious passing of slips and the constant endeavor to avoid the police must have a demoralizing effect on character and establish a general weakening in respect for law," the report asserts.

CHILDREN BET, TOO

One of the greatest evils decried by the committee is the extent to which women and children in England participate in betting.

"The evidence establishes," the report says, "that women are betting to a very large and steadily increasing extent. Street bookmakers are so thoroughly organized that within recent years they and their agents have begun a system of canvassing the homes, and inducing the women to bet."

"This is most pernicious, as it can only be done out of household money, probably without the husband's knowledge."

"Children are largely used all over the country as messengers to carry the betting slips of their parents to the bookmaker. They readily learn the business, and some take to betting themselves. It is undoubtedly that the bookmakers will do bet with children, and the committee had evidence in one case that in a London elementary school boys of ten and twelve years were buying tips and were betting in sums of three-pence and six-pence (5 and 10 cents) with a bookmaker."

The extent to which betting prevails in England is strikingly set forth in the report, in commenting upon the ramifications of the bookmakers' business. Hundreds of small shopkeepers in all parts of the country, the report asserts, act as agents for bookmakers.

"It is not too much to say," the committee declares, "that our industrial areas are permeated with these secret and illegal betting houses. It is stated that there is scarcely a works in the country employing more than twenty men where there is not a bookmaker's agent."

MANY BOOKMAKERS

To take care of England's eager bettors, the committee estimates there are at least 10,000 bookmakers—some estimates run as high as 25,000—and the yearly turnover, or total sum wagered with the "bookies" is estimated at not less than $1,000,000,000. The average profit of the bookmaker, the committee believes, is approximately 2 per cent of the turnover, although the rate varies as between different bookmakers and different classes of bookmakers.

The committee believes that a tax on betting is feasible and estimates that it would yield an annual revenue of approximately $25,000,000. The committee's report sets out the following proposals:

To levy an ad valorem duty on all amounts staked as bets with professional bookmakers; to make the bookmaker responsible for payment of the duty; to require every bookmaker to hold an excise license, renewable annually, the license fee being ten pounds ($50) annually; the rate of the duty to be 2-1/2 per cent of the amount staked.

MORALITY VARIABLE

Details of the workings of the tax plan, however, lose interest in the face of comments inserted by the committee.

28 OHIO COUNTIES BOAST THEY HAVE CORN KINGS NOW

Ohio can produce more than 100 bushels of corn an acre—nearly three times the state average—in every one of its four corners, despite common belief that high corn yields must come from the central and south western counties.

Records for seven years of 10-acre state corn contests, as compiled by farm crops extension specialists at the Ohio State University, show that 44 different farmers in 28 counties have qualified for the 100-Bushel Corn Club of Ohio by producing 1000 bushels of corn on 10 acres. This list of counties includes such widely separated ones as Lake, Williams, Hamilton and Gallia.

Muskingum leads with five who have qualified one or more times for the 100-Bushel Corn Club. Then comes Scioto with four, Licking, Clinton and Hancock with three each, Williams, Wood, Darke, Delaware, Champaign, Clarke, Montgomery, Pickaway, Highland, Gallia, and Hamilton with two each, and Lucas, Lake, Stark, Tuscarawas, Know, Hardin, Shelby, Madison, Greene, Ross, Warren, and Fayette with one apiece.

Of the 106 who entered the 1923 10-acre contest, 54 finished by having their yields checked. The average yield of these 54 was 78.31 bushels an acre, twice the state average but lower than the average of corn club contestants for the six years before.

The high year was 1920, when 63 finished in the contest with an average yield of 89.95 bushels an acre, and 18 Ohio farmers qualified for the 100-Bushel Corn Club, compared to four this past year.

Three additional ones are Russell, Dallas, Champaign County, 85.19 bushels an acre; A. F. Huber, Logan County, with 81.96 bushels an acre; and David Mutzner, Miami County, 77.99 bushels an acre.

AMERICAN PSYCHOLOGIST TELLS IRISH HOW TO LIVE TO BE 600 YEARS OF AGE

Belfast, Feb. 4.—Advice on "How to live to be 600" has been given to people of this city by Miss Alfaretta Hallam, American psychologist, author and lecturer.

Her main points for attaining eternal youth are:

1. Drink two quarts of water per day.

2. Avoid hurry in eating and traveling.

3. Discard bleached flours and bleached sugars.

4. Remember that a destructive thought can change the chemistry of the body from a state of health to one of disease.

5. Don't be kittenish if advanced in years, but be cheerful in outlook, and dress with a taste which suggests that the wearer is a person who respects himself or herself.

6. When married don't dream of setting down in a slovenly or satisfied sense.

7. Smile, smile, smile and then turn the corners of your mouth up and obviate the droop to the hopelessness.

"There is the authority of both doctors and scientists," continued Miss Hallam, "for the statement that the weakest organ of the body was intended to endure for periods between 150 and 600 years. So I say that I am going to live to be 600 years old—and then some."

"Some day, I believe, men will promise their sweethearts undying love and affection. Some day girls who give their soft responses will not have a prayer in their hearts that it will all come true. They will know it is true!"

Styles BY LENORE

If you care to avail yourself of the decorative value of earrings, it is wise to consider their relation to the shape of your face and the impression you wish to make on people, for no jewelry accessory has more influence in changing the character of a face than a pair of earrings. Many a vampish looking flapper will confess her debt to her earrings, usually extremely long and dangly. And many an otherwise undistinguished looking girl can achieve considerable individuality with skillfully chosen earrings. Blown glass earrings are among the newly imported novelties that will amuse Miss 1924. Note the ingenious bird design—a ruby red bird, swinging on a crystal perch. Dignity must indeed sit lightly on the head that wears this whimsical bauble. There is also a bell-earring, made of tiny cut heads which sparkle in the light—and a stunning, very formal earring which has a black onyx circle passing through a large pearl.

Fought Hard to Save Woodrow Wilson.

Admiral Cary T. Grayson

Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, of the medical corps of the Navy, for years was President Wilson's chief medical adviser and struggled desperately to save the life of his devoted friend. Though his tour of duty at Washington has ended, the late President Harding ordered that Admiral Grayson was to remain in Washington as long as Mr. Wilson lived, and this order was continued instantly by President Coolidge.

MONEY AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Bonds, Stocks, and Investments

Over a period of years the price of Liberty bonds should advance, in respect of the trend of the bond market in general.

A heavy sinking fund is steadily retiring the various issues of government bonds outstanding, and the British government is purchasing Liberty bonds to pay its debt to the United States. This buying will eventually cause a large decrease in the supply of government bonds.

On the other hand, the demand is likely to increase. Banks and other institutions which are limited by law in the type of their investments will want increasing amounts of Liberty bonds. There will also be a demand from buyers wishing tax exemption. Apparently there will be an artificial scarcity of government bonds some time in the future, provided, of course, that we do not have another war. Eventually, competition for the bonds probably will force the price up, irrespective of the trend in the general bond market. Of course it will be many years before the full force of these factors is reflected in the price.

Tomorrow "Money at Work" will point out which issue of Liberty bonds is best suited to the average investor.

WELLS ORDERED TO CUT DOWN ON WORK

New York, Feb. 20—H. G. Wells, perhaps the most prolific of England's modern writers, has been ordered by his physicians to Wells, perhaps the most prolific of death hanging over his head if he fails to heed their instructions, according to information received here by friends of Wells.

Physicians who recently examined Wells are understood to have informed him that unless he ceased his intensive work he might not live for another three months. Wells immediately packed up his bags and left for Portugal, where he hopes that a milder climate will enable him to build up his constitution and carry on his work at the same time.

Wells is one of the most intensive of modern writers, and when he works forgets all else. His great efforts in recent years have been constantly wearing down his constitution until he is now in a fairly delicate condition. The rigors of the damp, dismal English weather have also affected his health.

POKER IN CHINA; MAH JONGG IN U. S.

Philadelphia, Feb. 4—Poker is a more common game in China than the well-known Mah Jongg, according to a Chinese student at the University of Pennsylvania, who spoke with the feeling that "It is high time for some Chinese to point out a few of the extravagances that marvelous press agents have indulged in while popularizing Mah Jongg."

"First, it is not a sacred and ancient game," he said. "They say it originated with Confucius, but that sage would have frowned on such frivolity. 'It cannot be very ancient, as we Chinese consider things ancient. The game is not mentioned in literature earlier than 100 years ago. 'Then you should discount all statements that it is the most popular game played in China. I would say that our American poker is played more extensively in my country than Mah Jongg.'"

FORMER LAWYER OF PITTSBURGH HOLDS SERVICES IN XENIA

A practicing lawyer, who turned into a preacher, is holding revival services for the Second United Presbyterian Church, West Market street, this week.

The lawyer-preacher is the Rev. John A. Wilson D. D., LL. D., of Pittsburgh whose real eloquence held two large audiences Sunday.

Leaving the bar Dr. Wilson brought to the pulpit the technical talents of the lawyer and has developed into one of the leading preachers of the cities where his lot has been cast, Saint Louis and Pittsburgh especially.

Dr. Wilson was later elected professor of Church History and Homiletics in the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary and his sermons Sunday demonstrated his outstanding excellence on the platform. He spoke in the morning on, "A Wonderful Walk," and at night on "The Redeemed in Glory."

His services will continue through Friday night, the Monday evening topic at 7:30 being "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ. Are you?"

The Second church is extending a cordial invitation to the public.

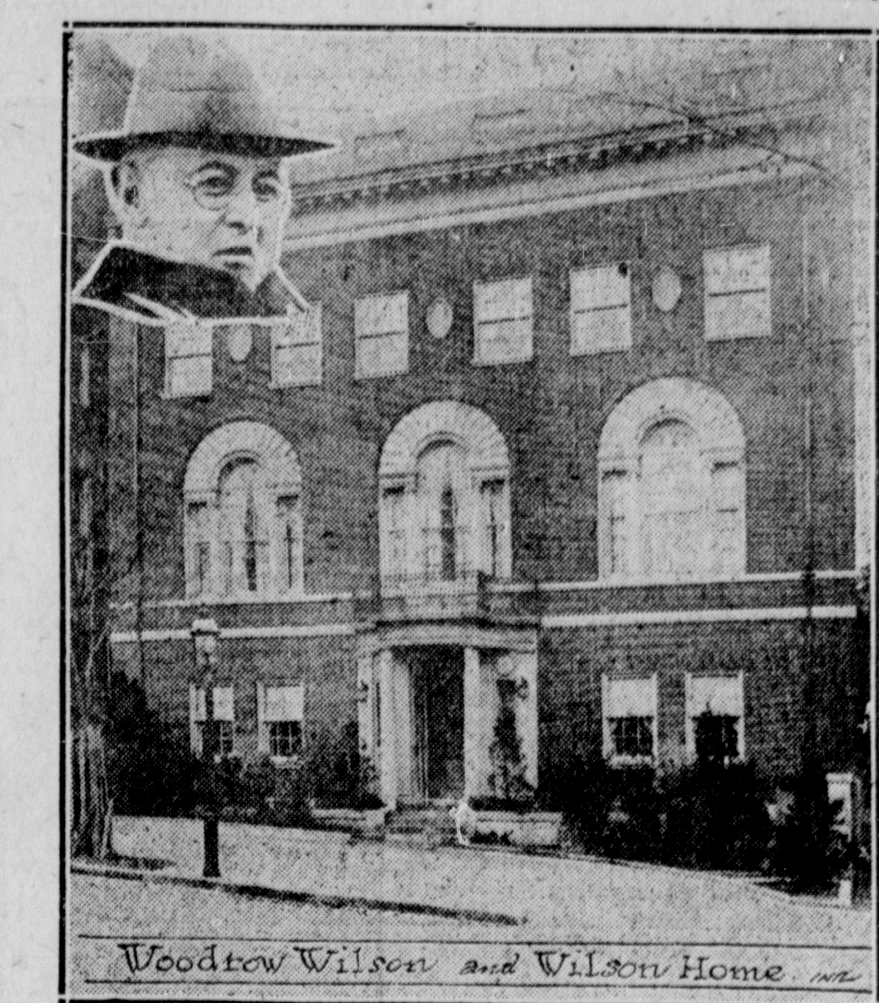

FARM PROGRESS NAMED DIRECTOR OF MIAMI VALLEY MILK ASSOCIATION

Frank Wardlow, Xenia, president of the Miami Valley Cooperative Milk Producers' Association, was nominated director of the organization, as Greene County's representative, at the advisory council's conference, held Saturday afternoon, at the Y. M. C. A. Dayton.

The other seven directors of the association, nominated at the meeting were, C. W. Lawrence, Clark County; J. H. Kauffman, Montgomery County; Charles Stockslager, Preble County; C. F. Mackenhen, Warren County; Omer C. Ryan, Darke County, and Harry Littlejohn, Champaign County. Seven of the directors will be elected to the board at the March meeting of the association.

Nomination of directors was made from the floor. In the morning the 100 men assembled at the conference voted to establish a state dairy association. This association would not result in a milk trust, according to A. F. Hedges, manager of the Miami Valley Association, but would bring about closer cooperation between the local organization and the nine other milk associations in Ohio.

WORLD ACCORDS HONORS TO LATE PRESIDENT WILSON; DIES SUNDAY

now speeding eastward from California.

The McAdoo's are due in Chicago some time today and there it is hoped to consult them by long distance telephone.

The funeral probably will be held Wednesday, but no further details had been decided upon this morning.

Nor has there been any definite decision upon the place of burial.

Arlington National Cemetery, where lies the nation's heroic dead, stands ready to receive the commander in chief of the nation's greatest armed forces, should members of the family desire it.

Princeton University, where he was first professor and then president for so many years, and from when he came like a flaming meteor into public life, would like to have him back, for burial on the campus grounds with other distinguished sons of Princeton.

Virginians would like to see his final resting place be in the soil that gave him birth,—at Staunton, with its historical memories.

One solution suggested today, was to have the former president interred privately in Washington, and then later under calmer circumstances have his remains removed to some place where fitting arrangements might be made to have his grave become a national shrine. That his final resting place will become a point for pilgrimages was not doubted today, and this fact has to be taken into account in whatever arrangements ultimately are decided upon.

The final scene was simple and its very simplicity made it more heart-rending. On either side of the bed in the sickroom high on the third floor and overlooking the little garden where the former president liked to spend the sunny days with his black-thorn stick and his easy chair, sat Mrs. Wilson, the wife and Miss Margaret Wilson, the daughter, each holding a hand that had changed the course of the world.

At the foot of the bed, his heavy eyes and haggard face filled with tears, stood Dr. Cary T. Grayson, whose personal and professional relationship with the man on the bed had extended over more years and problems. Occasionally he moved around to the side and felt the weakening pulse. It grew fainter and fainter until at last it could not be discerned through the velvet-like transparent skin. So faint was the indication of life, that its final actual departure could scarcely be determined.

"He was a tired man, going to sleep," said Dr. Grayson.

"He was a tired man, going to sleep," said Dr. Grayson.

Immediately after Mr. Wilson's death the great government over which he presided for eight years began taking steps to give marks of its respect. President Coolidge heard the word of Mr. Wilson's death while in church with Mrs. Coolidge. Immediately at the conclusion of the services he drove to the Wilson home and left cards. Later he sent his secretary to offer any aid whatever.

Flags on government buildings and government proper everywhere were lowered to half mast. The news went to army posts everywhere and to the ships at sea. A 30-day period of official mourning was ordered as the government had done for Colonel Roosevelt and other former presidents.

Official telegrams were dispatched to the embassies and legations abroad for the information of foreign governments. One cablegram going to far off Siam carried the news to Mr. Wilson's daughter, Mrs. Francis Bowes Sayre. She is with her husband at Bangkok, where he is advisor to the siamese government. Another telegram was dispatched to Mr. Wilson's other daughter, Mrs. William G. McAdoo, who, with her husband and children is speeding to Washington on a train from California.

Mr. Wilson's last words of sustained meaning were spoken Friday. They were: "I am ready."

Realizing fully that he could not hope to rally from the onslaught of the digestive disorder which sapped his strength, weakened his heart and accentuated the condition which followed his first stroke of paralysis, he watched for a moment when all except Dr. Grayson were out of his bed chamber. Drawing his friend and physician close, he murmured with some difficulty of articulation, "The old machine has broken down. You've done your best for me. But it's better that I should go than to live on a helpless invalid. Tell Mrs. Wilson I want her. I'm ready."

All this was without a show of emotion but in his usual measured habit of speaking. Mrs. Wilson came at the physician's call and spoke for several moments with her husband, during which he communicated to her some last wishes. From that time Mr. Wilson lived out his fast fleeting life with the full knowledge that he was on the threshold of the great beyond. If, in his dying moments, he harbored any feeling at all for the men in public life who prevented the fulfillment of the ideals for which he repeatedly had said he would have been glad to give his life, he never gave any indication of them.

He never spoke a complete sentence after that and merely was able to whisper "yes" and "no" to gentle inquiries of how he might be made more comfortable. When he no longer had strength to do that, he gave his answers by making a motion with his head. Even then and until Saturday night he was able to recognize those about him. With the last sinking spell Saturday night, however, he fell into a state of complete prostration and fitful slumber in which his vitality slowly but surely ebbed out. Sunday morning found his pulses fluttering more feebly and feebly until the end.

Don't Judge from Appearances!

THE earth looks flat enough! That's why so many thousand years came and went before our ancestors even suspected the terrestrial globe of being round. Their eyes deceived them

Don't depend on appearances to guide you right. Don't buy goods on the strength of looks alone. Merchandise with a well-known name has the call. Only the maker of a good product can afford to advertise his name. Attempts to popularize unworthy goods cannot succeed.

Wise merchants and manufacturers seek the good papers to tell the stories of their wares. The publishers seek the reputable advertising for their readers' guidance. Well-informed buyers seek news of good merchandise through the columns of the best papers.

This proves the value of advertising. Neither advertiser nor publisher can prosper without your patronage. Therefore, it is to their advantage to cater to you. They do it, too.

It is distinctly to your advantage to be guided by the messages they lay before you—the advertisements.

HARKING BACK TO LAYS OF "HONEST AND FAITHFUL SERVICE"

Chairman Hull, of the Democratic national committee, has issued a pronouncement in which he attempts to give the color of partisan politics to the disclosures in the Fall case. Secretary Fall is a Republican, it is true; he is a former member of the Harding administration. If, as Chairman Hull declares, there has been bribery, it is well to remember that there must be a briber as well as a bribed; the man accused of bribery is Mr. Doheny, one of the nation's most distinguished Democrats. He was a member of the platform committee at the last Democratic national convention he made a speech in the convention; his name was placed before the convention for the vice presidential nomination by the California delegation. Mr. Doheny was the largest contributor to the Democratic national campaign fund in 1916; he gave generously it is said, to the Democratic campaign fund of 1920. It was at Mr. Doheny's instance that the late Secretary of the Interior Lane, who had passed upon oil leases in which Mr. Doheny was interested under the Wilson administration, retired to accept employment with Mr. Doheny at a salary of $50,000 a year. Other important officials of the Wilson administration took employment with Mr. Doheny at fabulous salaries. The less said about partisan politics in this connection, perhaps, the better; it is not a matter of partisan politics, but of personal and official wrong doing, for which no party can be held responsible. The Republican national administration has made itself clear; it will go to the bottom of the matter and prosecute anyone found criminally liable.

OHIO'S MILLION TELEPHONES—WONDERFUL

As in its possession of automobiles, the United States is so far ahead of all the other nations in the world in its use of telephones that the figures on the subject must be subdivided and diluted somewhat to make comparisons at all effective. To say that there are 22,000,000 telephones in the world and that 14,000,000 of them are in America is nowhere near as illuminating a contrast as the statement that there are more telephones in Steubenville, O., than in all of Greece.

It is an interesting collection of figures that the commercial superintendent of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., offers with his announcement that the state now has in excess of 1,000,000 phones an average of one to every six residents. Making due allowance for all the telephones of business houses, there is still a phone for almost every other family in Ohio. It is a considerably better average, too than that for the country as a whole.

But it is in the comparisons with other nations that the greatest contrasts are shown. France or England have fewer miles of wire and fewer connections than this one state, which indeed, uses the telephone more than all the countries of South America and Africa combined. And Cleveland alone has more than Italy.

There has been a few more remarkable feats of industrial and commercial development and expansion in the United States than that of the telephone service, for the telephone is now something like fifty years old; but there have not been many. From an undreamed of possibility to one of the most important and indispensable adjuncts of business and social life it has grown in that space of time. To realize what it now means to us it is not necessary to imagine what modern life would be without it entirely, but only to picture the situation if its use were as limited as it is in China, where a nation of four times the population of the United States has fewer telephones than the city of Akron. — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"UNCLE SAM AND THE STATUE OF LIBERTY"

"The Statue of Liberty, with its majesty of pose, is less heroic than Uncle Sam," writes Ralph Barton Perry in the Century. "While the Statue of Liberty embodies our conscious rectitude and inspires our laudatory and exemplary nationalism; Uncle Sam," this writer declares, "is not a statue. He is so constituted that he could not by any stretch of the imagination occupy a pedestal. He could not hold the pose without feeling ridiculous. He is hearty, and fraternal, impulsive and generous, and, above all, unselfconscious. He has a kind of instinctive wisdom by which he anticipates and disarms the laughter of the world by laughing promptly at himself. It is Uncle Sam who feeds the hungry tramp at the back door while the Statue of Liberty reads him a letter from the porch. It was Uncle Sam who went to France in 1917 and to Russia in 1919, while the Statue of Liberty remained at home—on its pedestal."

"There is a place for the Statue of Liberty. It should not stand upon the Atlantic seaboard, looking meaningfully at Europe and inviting attention to our national perfection. It should not be compelled to enlighten the world. It should be removed to the interior, there to revolve upon its pedestal and stir the aspiration of Americans. It should preside over our domestic life and not over our foreign relations. Thus placed, it would symbolize, not liberty attained before an envious and admiring world, but that liberty which is our goal. It might then, together with Uncle Sam, symbolize our seeking and our confession of shortcoming, our faith and our candor, and, before the world, our tolerance and comradeship."

ARROGANCE
Deny it, scoffer, though you will,
There's more to life than cleverness.
White hands and fashion's newest dress;
One may be worthy lacking skill.

Think not the smart and clever word is all that God would have us say;
Think not on grammar's polished
way
Goes every prayer that shall be heard.

The man who is not worldly wise,
Who does not know the things you know,
Who bears the sneers which you
bestow,
May be an angel in disguise.

Toil is the gift of circumstance,
It had been yours were fate unkind;
That brilliant and boastful mind
You own by such a narrow chance!

That one with hammer, one with pen,
Work for life's pittance year by year
Is not a cause to boast or sneer;
This matters not if both are men.

Respect him though his speech be plain,
Befriend him whose'er you can;
Do not despise your fellow man;

Search out the heart and not the brain.
All would be clever if we could,
All would the robes of glory wear,
But this great privilege we share:
Honor in any garb is good.

"Cinnamon Buns:—Put into a saucepan one and one-half cups of sweet milk, one-third cup of butter, one-half cup of sugar and a pinch of salt; scald these ingredients together, then cool to the luke-warm state. Now add one cake of compressed yeast which has been previously dissolved in one-half cup of warm water, two beaten eggs, and flour enough to make a stiff dough. Also add one-half cup of seedless raisins chopped coarsely. Let rise till double in bulk, then turn out on your bread board and roll one-half inch thick; cover with a little melted butter and a mixture of ground cinnamon and sugar (using about one-half cup of this mixture); roll up the dough like a jelly roll, then cut it into one-half inch slices with a sharp knife. Bake in a hot oven for about 30 minutes, and cover with melted sugar when done." (This recipe, together with the three following, were very kindly sent in by a Reader Friend, to help other housewives.)

"Lemon Rice Pudding:—Put into a double boiler three pints of sweet milk, two tablespoons of washed rice, and a saltspoon of salt; cook till the rice is tender, then pour the mixture into a baking dish in which are the beaten yolks of two eggs, the grated rind and juice of one lemon and three tablespoons of sugar (have this dish previously buttered with a piece of butter the size of an English walnut). Beat the two egg-whites stiff and add enough granulated sugar to sweeten them; use this meringue to spread on top after the pudding has baked for 40 minutes in a moderate oven. Return the dish to a mild oven to brown the meringue.

"Rinkum Diddy:—Put a small piece of butter into either a chafing dish or a double boiler; when melted, add one cup of canned tomatoes and one-fourth teaspoon of baking soda; when simmering add one cup of sweet milk, stir a few minutes, then add one pound of mild cheese cut in small pieces. Season with salt and pepper to suite individual taste, and add five drops of Tabasco Sauce. Stir over mild heat till cheese melts, then add three lightly beaten eggs. When the mixture thickens, serve on either toast or crackers.

"English Monkey:—Soak one cup of bread crumbs in one cup of milk for about 30 minutes. Put one tablespoon of butter into either a chafing dish or a double boiler and when melted add over mild heat till the cheese melts, one cup of mild cheese cut small. Stir then add one beaten egg, the soaked bread crumbs, one-salt teaspoon of salt, a dash of Cayenne and about one-fourth teaspoon of soda. Cook five minutes and serve on toast or crackers."

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. ACENITH ROBERTS

MRS. LOUISE VIRTUE Steubenville, Ohio.

You say "Why am I always sick?" You perhaps have tried so many remedies without any results whatever; you also have read of this great remedy, Ka-di-ok, and in your own mind have doubted its merits. Why? Simply because other medicines have failed. Naturally this was also added to your list of failures. But there is hope for you if you will have faith in Ka-di-ok and give it a trial to convince yourself of its merits. For instance:

Mrs. Louise Virtue, who has lived in Steubenville for the past twenty years, residing at 724 Washington street, said:

"I suffered with kidney trouble for several years; had pains across my back continually and my rest was disturbed several times every night. I also had rheumatism in my hands and limbs. I did dressmaking and sewing for a great many years, but had to stop working as my fingers became too stiff for me to continue. I tried all kinds of treatments and remedies, but nothing helped me very much until I took Ka-di-ok. After a few weeks' time my condition shows a wonderful improvement. Ka-di-ok has relieved my kidney trouble and I am now doing dressmaking again and any other work that I have to take care of. Ka-di-ok is worth its weight in gold and I am glad to recommend it."

Ka-di-ok can be had in Xenia at Sayre and Hemphill Drug Store.

Today's Talks

There is much in literature about "the wings of an eagle." What a reach of wing this proud bird has! I believe that this has more than anything else to do with the fame of this king of the air.

to heart trouble from which she had been suffering two weeks.

Mrs. Roberts was before marriage Miss Acenith Oren, the daughter of Joseph and Acenith Oren, and born in Clinton County. For many years she lived with her husband on a farm three miles east of Jamestown, retiring and removing to that village seven years ago.

Surviving is her husband, two sons, Elbert of London and Homer at home, and one sister, Mrs. Mary Peale, of Wilmington. She was a lifelong member of the Friends Church of Jamestown. Funeral services will be held at that church Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock and burial will be made in the Jamestown Cemetery.

The most interesting talker is not the one who can talk upon one subject but he who can talk on a dozen or more. Breadth of mind, of reading, of observation, is much more to be desired than great scholarship in a limited area.

The exquisite bronze of Louise Allen Hobbs, "Pippa Passes," vibrates with inspiration largely because of its outstretched, reaching arms. You feel the beauty of the little country girl wanting the entire world to get her joy.

It is said of Gladstone, the great English statesman, that he had two desks in his home—one for the tasks of statesmanship, the other for his book study and the delights of literature.

I talked the other day to the owner of a great newspaper who gives fully half his time to the collecting of books and art. He told me that was his way of extending youth and a happy viewpoint upon life.

It is very gratifying to be supreme in one thing, but it means so much more to be happy in the doing of many things—just so long as they are worth while or bring pleasure to others as well as yourself.

The sun's rays reach. A smile reaches. Hope reaches.

In prayer the soul reaches. It dismisses the petty worries and discomforts of the day and searches for food in a land of spiritual plenty.

The child reaches even before it can talk. So you may reach—even before you seem able to grasp what you may so much desire.

It was Browning, I believe, who once said that "a man's reach should exceed his grasp—or else what is Heaven for?"

REQUIRE COMPLETE REGISTRATION OF BIRTHS IN STATE

A circular letter from the State Department of Health to district health commissioners announces that a campaign to secure a more complete registration of births in the state is about to begin.

The law requires that "Each birth that occurs in the state shall be immediately registered in the district where it occurs. Within ten days thereafter, the attending physician or midwife shall file with the local registrar of the district in which the birth occurred a certificate of birth. If there be no attending physician or midwife then the father or mother of the child shall notify the local registrar within ten days thereafter of such birth having occurred."

The fine for neglect or refusal to comply with the requirements of this law is from five to fifty dollars. Some physicians are careless about making their reports promptly and so often the birth is not reported at all as any local registrar can testify because he is frequently appealed to to furnish birth dates to school authorities or others which his records do not show. The importance of official records of births which may be appealed to to settle doubts as to age for school attendance, working age, voting age, property rights etc., should be apparent to all.

The following is an official list of the local registrars of Greene County:

Xenia City, Xenia Township, Beaver Creek and New Jasper Township, Dr. A. D. DeHaven, T. H. Zell, deputy, Xenia.

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply easily and quickly made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Four 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for healing the membranes. To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. CEDARVILLE HIGH RETAINS LEAD IN COUNTY COURT LOOP

Setting back that ardent challenger, Yellow Springs High School by a score of 21 to 20 at Yellow Springs Saturday night, Cedarville High School basketball team retained its lead in the Greene County High School Basketball League.

The challengers, runners-up for honors so far in the county court loop, lost ground by the defeat, which leaves Bellbrook in undisputed possession of second place. Cedarville girls were set too swift a pace by the Yellow Springs girls in the semi-final losing 11 to 9, while in a preliminary the Springfield Y. W. C. A. team defeated the Antioch Academy girls 31 to 24.

Uncanny ability in hitting the hoop from the free mark, played a big part in the victory of the Cedarville boys. Bates, Nagley and Gordon run up nine points from the free throw mark, while Yellow Springs collected six points in this way, the margin of difference giving Cedarville the contest.

Both centers were ejected from the contest on four personal fouls. Hughes starred for Yellow Springs and Nagley sparkled for the Cedarville team. Lineup and summary:

The foul shooting of Miss Littleton enabled the Yellow Springs girls to win from the Cedarville girls, 11 to 9. Miss McMillan starred for Cedarville. Lineup and summary:

Miss Taylor of the Springfield Y. W. C. A. tied each other for field goal honors in their game, each shooting ten from the field, but five more fielders contributed by Miss Fay turned the tide of victory of Springfield. Lineup and summary:

ATHLETICS IN OHIO MAY HAVE COMMISSIONER

The Ohio High School Athletic Association, may soon have a dictator-judge like major-league baseball, Western Conference football and the movies.

This was the announcement made by H. P. Swain, Columbus, tournament manager for the association at a meeting of the northwestern district board of control at Toledo Saturday. The dictator would be known as a commissioner of interscholastic athletics with full managerial powers.

The commissioner would be to high school sport in Ohio what Judge Lanis is to Big Ten football. He would settle all eligibility disputes, arrange for tournaments and take care of all other questions that now come before the district boards. His decisions would be final.

Ohio is now divided into six districts—the eastern, southwestern, northeastern, northwestern, south-western and central. Each district has a board chosen by the association which makes its own interpretations and decisions. As a result of this situation, it is often the case that interpretations of rulings and rulings and decisions as to eligibility conflict between the boards.

Funds to maintain the commissioner might be raised in different ways but one method selected was to have each tournament turn over ten per cent of its receipts to the fund, the sum not to exceed $250. Although the plans has not been definitely decided upon, it was the belief of those at the meeting that the system would go through.

The meeting was called to discuss the semi-annual tournament of the northwestern district. It was attended by Floyd Rowe, Cleveland; H. P. Swain, Columbus; E. W. Hovey, Defiance; Carl Meissner, Toledo and Radon, Oberlin.

TILDEN TO BE CLASSED AS PROFESSIONAL

New York, Feb. 4.—The United States Lawn Tennis Association will give Little William T. Tilden, national champion, declines to abandon the pen for the exclusive use of the racket; on the contrary, it will feel more or less relieved, as the fellow said, when the party permanently borrowed his watch.

These are the words of men in close touch with the tennis situation in this city, from which the game is governed by a few for the alleged benefit of many. They were spoken following the action of the association's annual meeting on Saturday when the player-writer was legislated out of existence after January 1, next.

Tilden need only adhere to his expressed determination to continue his writing to insure that America will lose, automatically, perhaps, the greatest figure in tennis history. He will be declared a professional and it is said that officials of the association and the Davis cup committee will be displeased not at all. They are said to have a great plenty of Tilden's society.

GAS BUGGIES—They Don't Always Want What They Ask For

MY STARS!! SOME SHINE—I WOULDN'T KNOW IT WAS THE SAME CAR—

MILLION DOLLAR ENDOWMENT ASKED FOR ANTIOCH FUND

Antioch College, Yellow Springs, is winning the attention of national educators, through its educational system, developed by President Arthur E. Morgan.

As an indication of its distinction, Dr. Charles W. Elliott, president Emeritus, of Harvard University, asked for a single gift of $1,000,000 for Antioch, in the February issue of the Century magazine. In the same issue, Ellery Sedgwick, editor of the Century magazine, invites inquiry concerning the school.

"Antioch college is a new and promising undertaking in making men and women," asserts Dr. Elliott in his appeal for the million dollar contribution. "It supplies physical examination and training; discipline in initiative and responsibility; drill and planning the controlling expenditures; liberal education, varied and symmetrical; guidance in choice of calling and thorough preparation for it, and apprenticeship to real life by part time practical work."

"I consider Antioch college a very significant undertaking in American education. To fulfill its purposes, it must be well endowed. A million dollars promptly given to Antioch would be a contribution to American education at a strategic point."

Of the 500 students enrolled in Antioch College, 190 come from Ohio, New York is second with 65, and Massachusetts follows with 25. Every state is represented except Nevada, New Mexico, Arizona, Louisiana and Rhode Island, and there are students from five foreign countries.

During the first year under the regime of President Morgan, the school had 200 students. The following year about 375, and this year about 500. The faculty of 48 men and women represents 34 American and six foreign universities and colleges. The 125 firms which co-operate with the college in employing students are located in Xenia, Dayton, Springfield, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Middletown, Columbus, and other Ohio cities.

BRINGING UP FATHER

The Evil Shepherd

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

To reach their table, the one concerning which Francis and his friend had been speculating, the new arrivals, piloted by Louis, had to pass within a few feet of the two men. The woman, serene, coldly beautiful, dressed like a Frenchwoman in unrelieved black, with extraordinary attention to details, passed them by with a careless glance and subsided into the chair which Louis was holding. Her companion, however, as he recognized Francis, hesitated. His expression of somewhat austere gloom was lightened. A pleasant but tentative smile parted his lips. He ventured upon a salutation, half a nod, half a more formal bow, a salutation which Francis instinctively returned. Andrew Wilmore looked on with curiosity.

"So that is Oliver Hilditch?" he murmured.

"That is the man," Francis observed, "of whom last evening half the people in this restaurant were probably asking themselves whether or not he was guilty of murder. Tonight they will be wondering what he is going to order for dinner. It is a strange world."

"Strange, indeed," Wilmore assented. "This afternoon he was in the dock, with his fate in the balance—the condemned cell or a favored table at Claridge's. And your meeting! One can imagine him gripping your hands, with tears in his eyes, his voice broken with emotion, sobbing out his thanks. And instead you exchange polite bows. I would not have missed this situation for anything."

"Tradesman!" Francis scoffed. "One can guess already at the plot of your next novel."

"He has courage," Wilmore declared. "He has also a very beautiful companion. Were you serious, Francis, when you told me that that was his wife?"

"She herself was my informant," was the quiet reply.

Wilmore was puzzled. "But she passed you just now without even a glance of recognition, and I thought you told me at the club this afternoon that all your knowledge of his evil ways came from her. Besides, she looks at least twenty years younger than he does."

"I can only tell you what I know, Andrew," he said, as he set down his empty glass. "The woman who is with him now is the woman who spoke to me outside the Old Bailey this afternoon. We went to a tea-shop together."

She told me the story of his career. I have never listened to so horrible a recital in my life."

"And yet they are here together, dining tete-a-tete, on a night when it must have needed more than ordinary courage for either of them to have been seen in public at all," Wilmore pointed out.

"It is as astounding to me as it is to you," Francis confessed. "From the way she spoke, I should never have dreamed that they were living together."

"And from his appearance," Wilmore remarked, as he called the waiter to bring some cigarettes, "I should never have imagined that he was anything else save a high-principled, well-born, straightforward sort of chap. I never saw a less criminal type of face."

They each in turn glanced at the subject of their discussion. Oliver Hilditch's good looks had been the subject of many press comments during the last few days. They were certainly undeniable. His face was a little lined, but his hair was thick and brown. His features were regular, his forehead high and thoughtful, his mouth a trifle thin but straight and shapely. Francis gazed at him with a man entranced.

low to bring the bill outside. We'll have our coffee and liqueurs there."

RADIO BROADCASTS TO BOWDOIN FROZEN IN ARCTIC FLOES

Being frozen up with an Arctic expedition in the floes of Greenland isn't at all like it was "in the good old days."

The American ship Bowdoin, now wintering in Refuge Harbor, North Greenland, far beyond the outposts of civilization is equipped with the finest radio equipment obtainable and members of the expedition are in constant touch with friends at home, and are entertained nightly with fine programs from American broadcasting stations.

A radiogram from the Bowdoin was received recently by Dr. Frank W. Elliott, business manager of The Palmer School of Chiropractic, stating that programs from WOC are among their favorites and requesting a special broadcast program in their honor.

Arrangements have accordingly been made for a special broadcast on Monday, February 11th, at midnight, for Mr. MacMillan and his party.

The Bowdoin does not use voice for transmission but special arrangements have been made with an experimental station in Davenport to receive replies from the north land by code.
